David Clifford, Head of Strategic Innovation, Cavnue

Dave Clifford is the Head of Strategic Innovation at Cavnue where is responsible for envisioning ways for Cavnue's technology stack to drive innovations in road operations, procurement, and contracting. Clifford was most recently the Chief Artificial Intelligence/Machine Learning Scientist at General Motors. Prior to General Motors, he provided strategic and technical support to the office director of the Biological Technologies Office at the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency (DARPA), as well as program managers working on efforts in neuroscience and pandemic prevention. Clifford holds an International Science and Technology Policy M.A. from The George Washington University.